Vision

Vision without reason holds the grass is not as green, yet the side that we're all looking from we haven't really seen.
Consider all emotion using reason as a guide, and see that vision narrows faced with compromise or pride.
To never change one's vantage point may not be seen as sin, but, at times one sees more clearly from the outside looking in.
In cases, points of view or visions held, one must ignore;
for proportion, in your mind, take 12 steps back and look once more.
A thousand worlds appear in just as many pairs of eyes,
another's view, a mind can hold, if taught to empathize.
Wondrous are the visions our near future has to give,
if only we can learn to see beyond the lives we live.
