After saying this the other day and then questioning my self, if it is righ more I think it to be correct that love is only proved by example and not
You see you can buy someone flowers as you cheated on them and so buy
So that is an action yet the example is not a good one.

You can give your children big gifts, yet then spend no time with them, s love or is the action all they are getting?

Will carry on when I can think of some more.... yet I think if it is correct, then in showing love it is the example you giv saying some word or buying some gifts, yet the example of affection, acc love to begin.
