Title: Conversations
Subtitle: Yahweh is a Curse Word in Ancient Hebrew
Second Subtitle: Yahweh is a Curse Word in Ancient Hebrew Author: wizanda
Date: 1725877957
URL: https://www.wizanda.com/modules/newbb/viewtopic.php?topic_id=29

Because of the way language has evolved over time, from one culture to the Creator in the Hebraic religion has become a negative word, instead

Modern day Hebrew has taken the pronunciation of a Vav from Arabic, wh Waw.
In some cultures the 'W' sound came from Double 'V', which is still pronc like French (doo-bluh-vay).

In the Hebrew Bible, we have the word Havah (H1933/H1934 ÔÕÔ), which become', and is the correct pronunciation.

Because they've tried to recreate modern Hebrew, by using an Arabic Tri of it is the same, when it isn't; for one there are lots of two letter words things are pronounced differently.

When we put double 'VV' in Hebrew, like a 'W' we find the word Hawah (H means 'mischief & destruction'.

Yah in Hebrew is not a shortened version of YHVH (H3068 ÙÔÕÔ), it is a word (H3050 ÙÔ), meaning 'Lord'; this can clearly be shown in Psalms 89
'who is a strong Lord (Yah), like YHVH' - where if Yah was a shortened v couldn't be used about other Divine Beings, and as a comparison to the f

When people are saying Yahweh they are saying 'Lord of Mischief & Dest pronounced with a Vav, which could be pronounced as a 'Uh' sound or a '

Personally after much experimentation, and asking God which is acceptal be jYahavah, where the usages of 'A' is for power in a word, and the usa something.
This also then matches other ancient religious mantras, where there is a outward down breath.
The Yod was pronounced as a jY sound in ancient times, like the Rastas

The next part of this sacred naming, when we understand that Yah means exact same meaning as 'Brahma' in Sanskrit, 'to be, to make manifest', c breath - it is literally a translation from the Dharmic cultures, that Bhaga who Makes Become', which implies the 'Lord of Creation', which is the sa mean.

Something powerful in the wording Yahavah, is when David said in the Ps my desires', a word for desires is 'Avah' in Hebrew (H183 ĐÕÔ); where in not to desire/covet your neighbours possessions, it also has connotation the one who gives us our desires, by the very nature of reality. When it i Most High, and when we get the name pronounced right, it provides powe will fulfil our desires.