Summary: Most people are looking for love in all the wrong places, when unconditional love that is far stronger.

This is a statement for us to never forget this principle again, and hope for the same time of real unconditional love and the ways of heaven. With the whole world looking for this earthly perfect partner and love; we are living in a dream world.

As far as we have seen it does not exist, even those who say well we had it. Can any of you imagine what heaven, would be like if we took that principle? This is what we have here&.

Love and unconditional love, are two entirely different energies.

One is earthly and a chemical reaction of bonding with a sexual partner, stimulated for 18 months; also called the honey moon period.

Now that is what most people live for and is nothing to do with heaven.

So if your priority is to first serve your partner, then this is where you want to be.

Now in the Bible they did a terrible job of translating on purpose, as when they said defile your self with women, this is extremely sexist and in no ways written in the Bible.

This is a man made translation of a situation; as when we saw heaven at the time of the flood; there was women in heaven, and almost all angels had been created as man and many other beings.

Now in unconditional love and the people, we observed in heaven each was administered justice; if needed in righteousness and correct thinking as their own anger; Yet to discipline.

As real unconditional love is not kind, it is just&earthly love can be kind and gentle on many occasions.

Now given that fact, why are we all looking for partners? Are we all that we all fall out after a bit and start acting like sister and brothers?

So where is the love? We are all stuck on our own man (made love and hope for unconditional love, which is used all the time as dimension shined into our lives. So yes people can find that here and find a partner that stimulate them to do work as that is their way also.

On the other hand we have billions of people looking for the most ridiculous work.

We did use to believe all the rubbish they taught at school and brain was washed by commercials telling you need a partner you need love of man.

Ok so maybe explaining a few of the times, you feel unconditional love a

Unconditional love, you may feel when you have created something as it feeling and a feeling of contentment.

You will get this emotion when you make love to someone you really do care about feelings that is beyond flesh.

Your children you will care so much for this is similar, and many use the children end up with physiological problems from the results.

As you don't unconditional love anything that is in this earth, sorry to say. We love the higher nature of things in unconditional love = Spirit/Soul/Consciousness love = flesh/mind/body/looks these are not real, if taken from a pure metaphysical perspective i.e. the mustard seed means break out of the box.

For with your child it will be the moment of inspiration and creation of something new love within you.

Put it this way, you don't get any of the same feelings of what we now call love in words!

The next is love of the physical as in that one it is what you accept about someone you love someone.

Think about this for a minute and you will see, as it is the things you accept about someone you see are similar to your self that allows you to love that person.

This is the big point, that energy drops when you drop, so what do you think about love in a family?

Where this is what we call love and give our children?

We pray you can see what we are meaning, and not take offence from this. See we are trying to show there are two different loves one that is 7th dimension love in heaven and is unconditional love.

Now if people want to get this correct and the reason for me saying this (I am) see attractive women as the word attractive goes, (I am) thinking (I am) Why would we break the laws of heaven, me personally would much rather see how many women want to put up with men in there way when they are broken. Yes a woman needs support and if we got off this stupid idea of man made laws then enforced to spend time, with someone you don't like.

In many cases and think you do your children a favour, by staying like that. We are killing all of us, in the process as your energies spread into your children later as they will learn that is the way to interact.

So in heaven angels come together they share what they know and then they learn and share themselves with all.

There is no marriage in heaven, all are married to God and would not accept desires and so gained entry to heaven from passing desires.

As all of us with our system of society are producing desires, and desires are as that is just the way it has always been.

Even with our own children in a relationship it ends up sister and brother family again EGO, we all make a family!

Heaven has no authority over everyone other than God and all works as that someone needs help everyone is there straight away; why?

They don't need to hold another angels, hand to help people and neither

When we have partners, they can get jealous and so this is not unconditional love and a desire.

So the more we have removed the ways of heaven and followed the (I am) As God is we are and yes you are part of that and don't let religions; they are as really they are going on Chinese whispers.

Even though this may sound strong, realize it is still unconditional love. A realm beyond that of unconditional love and where it came from to begin. So it is one love all, never two.
