I have also died before in this life time and have seen this from a different

What I saw was the whole universe exists as quarks which are the smallest who don't know

The quarks were spirit and I was within what I saw at least it felt like that

The first place I went was into the more dense lower levels of existence quarks or spirit were just straight lines not containing much bounce

This was very much like Christ had said where the people were bothered and not each other

Everyone was talking yet no one was listening

This is/was hell it appeared to me yet not as many fictional stories have of the universe making up objects within the universe with no real content

Yet I, as per usual started talking about higher things and they tried to go dark level yet I called out and said I knew oneness

In my spirit and from within me a light shone out yet the lower levels tried

Then a light from above found me and pulled me through different levels

me) It took me into a place that was not, yet was apart of all of the universe matter and was in the realms of free consciousness

The first level of heaven was love and unconditional love for the universe centered on oneness.

The next was wisdom and high levels of wisdom without comparison or understanding of why things happen and with unconditional love contained

This level was focused in on the center of the universe as well with all spirit focused in on god

Yet I shouldn't even call him/it god as no name is suitable as he/she is a

As the way spirit exist in heaven is as bouncing radiant balls of dynamic bounce themselves into new structures within their souls

So as you float round each other you learn from the structure of the spirit wisdom without comparison and free of this ego we have let over-whelm spreading more into the universal flow
