No things in this universe/existence are random or consistent. All things are given to us. All things happen for a reason. Happen is because it must. Consistencies, randomizations fall under the category of consistencies. Consistency is an expectation. The ability to acquire and manifest an expectation blows an inconsistency which ultimately lead to negated emotions. To completely manifest emotions one must understand this philosophy and live life free flowing. Emotions are only a product of human narcissism. To live not expecting anything is a miracle. This must have been what Einstein was talking about, yet did he understand the universe, the universe does not expect, it flows, it changes like it must. The universe is honest and truthful in its ways, it has no desires, it has no expectations. The universe must and will be.

Expectation---Consistency---Negated Emotion.
