Also sounds have meaning, rhythms have meaning.

Its like the way birds talk, they use rhythms and different notation to express do the same thing and the root of languages is these simple sounds. For good; in Spanish, the sea is mar, mother, and move.

In ancient Hebrew this is also the case, so sh in Yeshua is the biting of amongst other things. So even the sounds and the rhythm used in a word subconsciously it means something as well. Do you see what I am getting We have added all these extra rules to our languages, yet really it makes understand you if you speak a different language.
