Summary: Spiritual Teaching Proverbs, Helping People to be Good Teach

One of the hardest things I find with many teachers and even my self; is People take things in like a plant grows, and the way we eat, so here is how to teach.
Quote:

a) People only eat, what is easy to digest.

Don't make what you say confusing; try and keep it simple wording, so ev

c) A piece of work isn't started until the plans are finished.

Don't try and explain something, without fully knowing what you are talki references; so then they can check for them selves also.
Quote:

d) People eat in portions.

There is no point in a long essay, as most people will only remember key you say in simple portions.
Quote:

e) Something to long is hard to hold.

When you write a letter or reply to someone, it is far easier to read in se piece; as people get bored of listening or reading what you have to say.
Quote:

f) People can only carry what they can manage; something too heavy won

When you discuss deep subjects try and keep them in simple terms. Don'

i) If you over feed a plant, the roots die.

Telling people too much of a subject in one go, can put the person off th
Quote:

j) Plants will only take what nutrition they need.

If people know that a subject can be answered by you, they will come to need. Giving the person too much information in one go, is just a waste;
what they need at that time.
Quote:

k) To much light can kill a plant.

People need to hear about good things, yet if you try and show them too can be burnt, and so detriment the growth.
Quote:

l) A plant that is well rooted absorbs more.

Someone who is already interested in a subject will take more in; then so knowledge of a subject.
Quote:

m) Too much pruning will kill a plants growth by shocking it.

Telling a person they are wrong in everything in one go, can cause a bad small sections, so they have time to adjust.
Quote:

n) When something is undone, it can still be tied.

When someone isn't sure on a subject and is still open to suggestion, the
