Summary: A quick explanation of why God exists as Zero, before the One

Because we are physical we think of things being One, as we have a tendency to exist (1), so we equate everything else the same.

Within my NDE I got to witness that Heaven is a Oneness, a collective consciousness. Source of reality.

Source exists beyond the quantifiable (Oneness); where Heaven is still defined by (Oneness).

Some think of God as the Self Existing One, and equate God as "I Am"; the holder, and that is only the identifiable in our scope of quantifiable.

God doesn't have an "I" as it doesn't have a beginning, and an end; God is the universe that has a finite existence, due to the nature of things.

Maybe an easier way to express it, is imagine we're all in a universal soup where quantum strands are organized by the Source (CPU - 13D) into dimensionality. reality was formulated there was just randomness (14D).

Imagine the CPU in the computer system having an 'I', and taking over, and doesn't, and people have made all sorts of reasoning, for why does God allow suffering - as it isn't a player of the game, it is the observer,

The Greeks equate this beginning to reality, that from that Chaos (Nyx - 11D+ 12D) was formed, and from there Chronos (Source - 13D) created the Greek ideologies personified it into an ego, it is more complex than that, didn't have self.

Source (13D+) exists outside of infinite time (8D), outside of Heaven's universe wisdom (12D).

So though we say God is One, within God's infinite scope of none localized everything, and everyone.

If we think everything is contained within God, and if God was full of self being one, then God would be driven by ego, and attachment to its own being sustaining us all from an empty space, so that all can be contained in the

It is like Lao Tzu explained, it is the empty space (0) in a room or a bowl. If the room or bowl was full (1), there would be no room for it to be used.

I wrote this sum out: $0 \times 1 = 1$
Which I find fascinating, that within God being 0, the many things $\times 1 = 1$ the whole Universe (One Verse).

Sorry it has got complex, yet it is the maths of the fabric of reality; an equation that what Buddha started with Nirvana:

Where we all exist within a Oneness, that comes from Heaven's Oneness; a centralized focal point, where we all feel connected.

Source exists as Zeroness (Oneness - Nirvana), as it existed before it was created. It does not have any need of being, and makes all this for the benefit of the other ones.

Oneness & Zeroness are like a flip of a coin: One is the physical that exists, the other is the non-physical, that makes it all exist.

Imagine back in the CPU analogy, that in computer code, the players all need an ID; yet the Universal Central Processor, doesn't need an ID, as it is therefore separate to the equation of needing to be One.
