Worship is a state of mind and attitude, and has nothing to do with a day. The sabbath of the ten commandments (saturday) been transfereed to sunday by the action of Jesus. The answer is no, it hasnt been. The issue of one day being holy is a seperate issue of whether we are to walk holy everyday. These are two seperate issues.

Its obviously not a sin to worship on sunday, nor any other day. It obviously is to walk clean not just on the sabbath, but every day. However there is an issue about sunday because God said it is. The 7th day sabbath was not created by man, God created it. Sunday sacredness is a catholic thingy, the vatican murdered all sabbath keepers and used the death penalty to get sunday sacredness established, and to abolish saturday. Sunday is mans tradition, not Gods!

Isaiah 66:20-26 says in the new earth, you will come and worship with me every sabbath. Thats God speaking, and he still declares saturday as special even in the new earth, when God comes to live with us. Something to think about.

What we are dealing with is a matrix, the evil ones control. Also indoctrinated churches. Its the churches who confuse the issue of worshipping; and saturday. But the issue is this, one day is holy, the other 6 are not..

And we are supposed to worship and walk clean every day. Thats how it is here that in a church..they have it all confused, jacked up and twisted. So the truth. Beware of wolves in sheeps clothing.

...Remember Adam and Eve were not Jews, and the sabbath was given to them. Ya have an issue about saturday as being holy and to be remembered as such, take it up with God. Because its his day, his thingy, and his command. Not the past, has anything to do with the 7th day sabbath. That comes strickly from him, need to take it up with him, if ya have a beef about it.. Good luck, your gonna be ya are going to convince God he made a mistake about this. But you can't win enough..I wouldnt recommend it tho.. I recommend to remember it, just like I remember it! peace!
