Why the interest?

What makes these children who by the way many are now adults, so special?

First sit back and relax, open your heart and your mind to a world you may not have known before. Each of us is born into a life stream consciousness of color. It is as the shift of consciousness awakens us. Some come into this world already knowing, they wake upon their journey.

Seems the interest begins somewhere in the middle, so we will start there, where the new beginning takes place.

Indigo children...perhaps you may recognize some of the basic traits. They were hooked on computers almost from kindergarten, some even sooner. They were ahead in gradeschool and knew computers, electronics and games better than people of their experience and age. I just sat back and let my indigo boys lead the way, I would pretend I can not run a DVD player or a remote control, just to watch them. We have some indigos right here among us...ya think? Of course we do...

It was funny, just today as my 21 year old indigo came into my office to show me he was doing on that computer still!"

Eight hours had already passed...HMMM! Yes, what am I doing? I had been sitting and rotating some laundry, and letting the animals in and out, two phone calls (mostly chit chat with others online) since he had left for Avionics class.

"Why you set a great example for me!" We both laughed. Eight hours less for him!

"It is what I do now to be in service to all of you." He grins.

Then he finds out I am learning to play Runescape, could this also be true? I ask questions as my face lights up with glee and I fill with such excitement, "Amazing," were the only words I heard.

Change is possible if we allow it. If we want it bad enough. Honestly, I was not in mastery, but in all amazement I did learn a few things from each day, for these are the children with the patience to teach those like myself. We may be taught by someone younger, and often brighter than self.

They are the new beginning we yearn for. These souls are often fearless, discerned their true path and know where their journey leads. They face

Some may not say out loud, yet they know. Not all chose parents who could make the transition on earth a simple one from the beginning, others chose doorsteps like my own or made it by sheer willpower, prayer and good fortune. They believe in themselves. They are the great accomplishees in life.

According to Lee Carroll and Jan Tober, authors of The Indigo Children, of indigos. I have had the pleasure to be in the presence of each. There is the conceptual, the artist, and the interdimensional. These children are natural. I need to be told things. I even dare to say I wouldn't recommend it ever! So I know and assume you should as well. A great frustration occurs when you play along...one day you just might if you pay attention and listen! To listen had any doubt still. I thought for a time one of my kids was going to use the point across! Stop laughing Zan! I hid the tape!

They have bridged the way from the third dimension to the fourth dimension, the rainbow bridge. The colors are changing. Do not get caught up in this before you can have it all straight in your mind's eye. Let it flow. Trust and

For me I hear it more than see as the changes are occurring, although at times in some. It is just that the numbers are creating such a resonance of soul song! Much like a piano playing one can look back over the ages and define black and white keys, the notes, the chords and assign each one a character on soon. The building of the song is the predictor of the new shift the world

I ask you not to fear, embrace the song and the change. Do you not hear? do not hear and faintness will grow within your heart! Listen to the sweet chords blended in the sweetest of melodies manifesting Heaven on earth. the illusion, it is happening now, even while we still practice and hit an there...understand?

Chimerically,
