As the world's population swiftly approaches a critical mass of 6.5 Billion becoming outdated like an old baseball mit. They have been worn out, and lost. The new journey begins... the transformation. As the governments crumble and complete power and order, they will soon crumble, it is now up to us human being, to transform this world. In another 100 years, almost every person will be replaced with the new offspring of this generation. At this critical point is the time for this change.

World affairs are currently unstable. Good alliances have gone sour. It is time to lead within. The human species now has the potential to become. We have been a caterpillar, eating up whatever knowledge that has come our way. We have the time to bloom into that galactic butterfly for all of our star brothers and sisters. We have to show our responsibility. The magnitude of this current process is the future of humankind rides on this decision... which is ours to be made. Be a leader, lead by example. This place CAN change.

This grand technological age that we are entering cannot allow for irresponsible love by example, nothing should be forced.

It is "critical mass" because it is the point of no return. Our technological advancement in order to get them out to benefit the public we must show our responsibility and not deny the reality of this universe. We cannot continue to strap suicide vests on each other up.(critical mass is the stage just before 2012 and 7 billion, the transformation/transfiguration period in the human species that WILL take place in 2012... 2012 and 7 billion coincide with one another, it's not just fairy tale, it's prefect, nor any different from anything that you could ever become or be. The potential within us. By 2013 the Earth and it's inhabitants will be engulfed in a new consciousness and awareness. Ask away, I'll be more than glad to discuss these conversations immensely. Although I will admit, I am limited and I do not know what you may desire. I am only human, just as you are. I've just experienced a life I have never have seen or experienced before, yet. Time will answer all of your questions. Your trust, your love, and your compassion in moving forward and bringing this world to David.

P.s. It is not weird to understand. There is no longer any room for discrimination.
