Next (I have been told) is misjudgement

So in this one goat will observe and address the situation to see what to a sheep will.. I was reading up on the whole thing and what pops into my mind is written how his goats would often climb up a number of different buildings to sunbath on the barn roof.

In other words goats are tricky to look after as they will explore new territories and are good at getting them self's out of a mess they get them self into

Now as I started with the overeating sheep following goats..this is where a sheep may find way out of mess, through panic alone, its head goes out and sets in...

They don't trust that the owner will have thought of this, and built the lair. Yet feel they have no hope and basically wait to die because of fear.

Put a goat in this situation and it will survive, it will make a mile stone back track, watch it on a mountain how it will resort back to its original position not sure if that is right, yet was told to write that and shown how it works. (God; God is so cool when then happens, it's like a movie.)

(Also this is maybe why I referred to my self as a kid to begin)
