THE LETTERS

Chapter I: Okke, my son -

1. You must preserve these books with body and soul. They contain the h well as of our forefathers.
2. Last year I saved them in the flood, as well as you and your mother; b therefore began to perish. In order not to lose them, I copied them on fo
3. In case you inherit them, you must copy them likewise, and your child they may never be lost.
4. Written at Liudwerd, in the year 3449 after Atland was submerged - th
Christian reckoning, the year 1256.
5. Hidde, surnamed Oera Linda - Watch!

Chapter II: Beloved successors -

1. For the sake of our dear forefathers, and of our dear liberty, I entreat let the eye of a monk look on these writings.
2. The monks are very insinuating, but they destroy in an underhand man
Children of Frya.
3. In order to gain rich benefices, they conspire with foreign kings, who greatest enemies, because we dare to speak to their people of liberty, ri princes. Therefore they seek to destroy all that we derive from our forefa our old customs.
4. Ah, my beloved ones! I have visited their courts! If Wr-alda permits it ourselves strong to resist, they will altogether exterminate us.
5. Written at Liudwerd, in the year 803 of the Christian era. Liko, surnam
