Since everyone suffers here from the moment we are born, we are dying. around us, though we see many beautiful things surrounding us.. it is also made after heaven, within countless books and this is second to it....

Now we are well aware there are certain texts that play on this point, could we ever have the upper hand over angels??

Yet we are also well aware that if someone had a dream or aspiration...a more often than not, as it is out of reach for them self's....so they take it

Anyway point being regardless of preconditioned ideas, set in place by religion, think here is...?

As if all we do is come here die and suffer, then heaven we have been told is energy, which to us may appear like a bright light, yet is high frequency reality.....

The reason asking it as a question, is if people say here isn't hell... the answer and most likely it is....

As since half of us don't know the tail from the head of the donkey, considering Christianity regardless if it stands against God, Christ Add, the rest of the Simon petros away with murder and we carry on?) (Read the book as a murder friend, who was lost! Else listen to the churches that they established on

So seriously question this for a minute in all the details surrounding us, "die young", ask your self why?...

Is it early release from prison?....

Are you 100% good?...

Is every breath and thought centred on the beginning and origin of the universe?

Think not, so is it hell then?

What do you think?

If you also understand from the question if we all actually agreed and said yes means we can all begin to improve as one, as if we all realized we are in hell some of us might have a rethink and work for once to become better, rather than (Maya = 666?)...

From No the soil was the very basement of reality... so yes we could still lower!

Yet doubt any of us would want to do that, as if we don't plant some tree get back again??
