This question is more simple to answer, when you dissect the different th testament.

The author of John and his letters creates an idea of jesus being one wit trinity, it even says jesus is the father. So if you're looking for a culprit starts there.

Paul says being the image of god, he has come down here to sacrifice hi they are separate distinct entities, it is already too late for a reader, as there.

Yeshua in Matt, Mark, Luke doesn't claim to be god, clearly points at the not good. Within these gospels he warns about those that come after and AM) to deceive many; that is what John, Paul and Revelations have mista ideology of him being god.

Revelations has forgeries at the beginning and end of it, that again use John (ego i-mee), that are then misconstrued to make him into being god
