Within many religious traditions, this realm we exist within is seen as a then many religions tell us this is to make us suffer... Which doesn't see design plan.

Our brains produce chemicals that make us seek out fulfillment of desire encourage this activity, not to prevent it.

Yet the religious tell us that being sexually inactive is a way to be godly sexually frustrated or God made us to enjoy making love, and to seek out

We get a rush of energy when we gamble; why make it such a high, if you

We're designed to find others sexually attractive naked, and yet some re designed us to be covered up, and to refrain from looking at all costs.

There are tons of natural foods, that cause us to get high, with the brain to produce responses; not through intoxication as the religious like to im biological design.... So God literally designed us to get high.

So as we look at each individual religion, and what they presume we're n they all just prudish people, who all just think diametrically opposed in s

Can anyone give any logical reasons why the things that God created us by religions?

Do you think the religious ideologies imposed by man, might be a way to to exist in the reality God created for us to take pleasure in, and explore

Which is the quickest way to get over a life long desire, to categorically about it or to experience it, so it no longer suffices as a desire?

Personally think we're here to learn Oneness, so which is the best way t celebrating in enjoying life together in the way it was designed or us all shouldn't be doing, as they're deemed sinful by the religions?
