Part of the problem of the 'Smith Virus Vs Neo', it is like a 'Them Vs Us' reptilian part of our brain (amygdala) without a fully functioning endocannabinoid system and an enlightened cerebral cortex, mainly has a fight or flight response.

This occurs because of the errors in the flow of data transmitted by the different contributing factors:

Coffee increases cortisol, which makes us have a fight or flight response. Alcohol switches down neural connectivity, like when something is scary or we're ready to die, and it limits neural connectivity making us more docile, yet more stupid, and in periods; as anger needs transduction to process down the flow of data from the pineal gland to the epithalamus... Thus the brain thinks it's a loss, yet it is not. Trauma in early childhood can lead to repressive thinking, that has to be broken down by entheogens to fix the neural pathways that were never established. To make a long story short, what if the problem isn't there is suppressive spiritual people; what if it is more, some people are stuck in a box... The more we challenge them, the more they challenge us; as that is all that drives us into an amygdala state), and due to not enough science on brain chemistry, we can't realize if we fixed the state of consciousness, it will automate a better system. The system is already damaged.
