Thats interesting Wizanda, I am slowly looking at your stuff, there is so many lines and patterns you have seen when ya died, remind me of the barriers, astral planes, or dimensions. EFrom what I understand, each level has a barrier has to be crossed before you can enter that level, unless you go thru a wall or one of the patterns on it, of a dimesion higher than earths.. It looks like the squares are flower looking patterns. If ya enter the center of the flower, you enter that dimension, or reality. If ya enter around the center, you enter one of the towns. If ya enter thru a petal of the flower, you enter into the countryside.

Now if ya vibrate at the highest levels, you pass all dimensions or astral planes as a spirit, which is totally different. From what little I have read from your experiences, you have visited several places, not just one. I will continue to study your material and if I come up with something, I'll share it with ya.

I do have to ask you, why you think there is no devil? do you mean there is no devil? Christianity places all three of these as the same entity. The ancient Hindu's call it 'body' to a place of darkness and evil entitys. The Apache indian shamans call them the lower astral planes of darkness.

A person who is good, will never see these unless you used intent, to see them. Otherwise your character takes to the place you are magnetized to, in you do believe there is a devil. I have had something materialize and try to deal with Lucifer/satan. Now thats my experience. So back to the question, why do you want peace
