According to the Dr Pepper website, there is a special patriotic edition Pepper can. A statement by Dr Pepper/Seven Up says the cans are to " patriotic fervor that has been sweeping America since the tragic events show the world that we are a united nation of people who place a high va

One side of the can includes the Statue of Liberty and on the other side Pledge of Allegiance, not the entire 31 word Pledge. The words on the c nation...indivisible." In the actual Pledge, that phrase is "One nation u Critics say that omitting the reference to God is an act of political corre that those who believe in God should complain about it. The Dr Pepper/S purpose was to reflect the unity of the country, not to make an anti-relig percent of the rest of the Pledge did not appear either.

Most of the questions to TruthOrFiction.com have been from people who had been quoted on the can but with the words "under God" left out. The the eRumor that claims that.

The protest arose when a 12-year-old girl wrote a letter to the American Mississippi to complain about the partial quote from the Pledge of Allegi be enough room to include the phrase "under God" and the American Fam that it was more a matter of choice to avoid reference to God rather than Forty-one million of the cans have been distributed in more than a dozen discontinued as of February.

There is a virtually identical version of the eRumor that says it was Peps patriotic can. That one is false.

A real example of the story as it has been circulated:

As you may or may not have heard, Dr Pepper is coming out with a patriotic set of soda cans.
The problem is that one of the cans will have the Statue of Liberty on one side and the Pledge of Allegiance on the other. Why is this a problem? Dr Pepper has taken upon themselves to remove "Under God". The can will read "One Nation, ... , Indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for All".

This has got to stop. When a handful of people wanted to stop prayer in school, I did nothing. I wasn't in school any longer so it didn't seem to bother me. I know this may sound hypocritical for me to now want to be involved, and I really can't explain why this seems to tear at my heart, but it does. I have children now and maybe that's the reason. For all of you with children in school, or grandchildren or nieces or nephews, this has touched you more than me. I see the world in the shape that it is in today and worry about the shape that it will be in when my children are older and attend grammer, middle and high school. What part will God play in the future? Will he even have a part?

This action from the Dr Pepper corporate office is no more than an attack on Believers. This does not target any specific denomination. This does not target christians.
This is a slap in the face of both Believers in the One True God and Americans in general. My father fought in a wa for his country. The Pledge of Allegiance is a symbol of what they were fighting for, just as the flag that waves today. The audicity of any single organization to take it upon themselves to change such an institution as the Pledge of Allegiance is more than I can stand.
