WHAT'S UP NEWS ALERT OUT FOR JANUARY 2006"

Greetings!

(A brief note: I decided to publish this article for January 1 on December 31 shifted today. The back-up booster rockets are firing, readying us for a big launch in January. We are finished with the integration and decision making process to our New positions in the New World and the next phase is beginning to unfold. I am highly sensitive to energy, I awoke this morning with a strange sense of stirring, whirring and movement as the momentum is building for our move forward. This energy will serve to push us ahead and over the top so to speak. Welcome to

2006. The Year Of Manifestation. Our time has come. We have reached the court in the court of the lightworkers. We will be supported in oh so many ways to create the New World .

Right Before We Get There

The second half of December, 2005 was a time for integration and for alignment. We know that these time periods vary for each of us....they are not exact.

During this time, there was a sense of "completion," as our old incarnations and realities were at an end. It was time to wrap things up. You may have found yourself ending old outdated relationships that would not serve you in your New reality, perhaps redefining them and taking them to New levels. Cleaning out closets, old computers, cars, or anything that defined and supported you in your old residence. Getting a New phone. Basically, readying yourself to move forward.

There are countless ways that the energies of this magnificent transition will manifest. So if some of the items from your old life began to breakdown or because it was time for them to be replaced by brand New, shiny, clear and manifestations that you will need in the New World.

During this time, there was also a lot of "transferring" energy as well. But to be transferred from one world to the next so to speak. Things needed a different way in order to support us in our New roles. Yes, we are leaving this time, there may also have been a sense of urgency about it all...as done and completed by January 1.

WE ARE MOVING FROM ONE REALITY INTO ANOTHER. THIS IS A MONUMENTAL AMAZING EVENT.

To recap:

August 2005 brought in the energy of finally reaching critical mass. November 11, 2005 opened the stargate or stairway to Heaven, where the higher realms were now upon us in complete totality. No more going "back and forth" glimmerings here and there of higher ways and a sense of being "there". December 12, 2005 was the time for integration of these higher realms. And now, January will mark the beginning of the New World .

These past few weeks have been creating much in regard to this integration. When a higher way and higher vibration first arrives, it feels glorious as it is creating the next phase is always an alignment period where everything within us needs to be created creates much purging and in the beginning (especially over the past few weeks) is uncomfortable. But the more we clear out, allowing a more pure alignment with a vibrating existence, the easier it gets.

Also, during the last few weeks of December, 2005, much was being aligned and not well. You may have experienced this time as a time of confusion....not knowing what you wanted to do or what was what with certain things. It may have felt like you were lost or disconnected. This was because you were disconnected.....disconnected because you are ready to enter another! And you may have felt lonely. You may have felt you don't belong anywhere and that there was not a place that currently existed that you could go to! This is because we can no longer tolerate the old creations and are creating New higher ways of living and being.

This confusion and disconnect energy was also here because at higher soul levels meeting deciding who wanted to do what in the New World . Things were being defined in order for our New roles. Things were being defined in regard to which souls were the experience and which souls have decided to take this latest exit point and where the experience not on this planet.

I likened this time to residing in a "tossed salad". Much was now dislodged and it was a key transition point. We were neither here nor there. And also during this time there was "commotion" energy. There were many, many souls floating around lost. For me there was too much in my space poking and prodding and coming at me, even though it was not the case in my physical reality. (Making an edgy and cranky Karen!) Many souls were not sure where to go and were wandering around. This is how it is during a transition process in the old 3D reality. We die in the physical, have a moment wander around a bit before we transition completely over. And then we have side! J

This was a time of incredible "death". You may have had dreams or themes of dying. You may have felt as though you were dying yourself. You may have had your own personal life review (and this is also a very common ascension symptom of examining one's life). You may have had panic and anxiety as you may have been leaving and you were not yet clear about exactly where you were going you looked at your life thus far and wondered why you hadn't done this or that in your dreams, as you were so dedicated to your lightworker job. (But your dreams will unfold in 2006...this will be a completely different time and experience.)

For highly sensitive and psychic individuals, these times of great transition are challenging. The trick is to trust and let go. Just as if you were dying in a plane, always helps to trust, let go and surrender. We all have many non-physical guides around us who are always there to assist and monitor this amazing process. We are never alone, even though many times it may feel that we are!

But there are yet even more symptoms, and then we will get to all the good things of the new realms, things are quite different. Being much more connected to Source and our vehicles in much more of a straight shot. It doesn't need to ricochet and get caught up in mis-perceptions about how we believe things are or even how we view our physical vessel that we navigate through ).

Having cleared out much through this on-going ascension process, the energy is running through us much more clearly. This creates a sort of impatience. Having to jump through hoops and go through lengthy processes of an old way of doing things (and having to prove everything) are feeling cumbersome indeed.

In addition, we are seeing outside of the box. Residing "higher" now, it is revealing the illusions and misperceptions that we have been blindly living in for so long. Why in the world individuals go through what they do to get anywhere in their energy. Or perhaps it is now so easy to see how individuals get caught in a circular, round and round pattern of energy exchange with others....never claiming "victim."

Last year during Christmas time I felt that this would be the last Christmas. Christmas, it felt as if we were acting out an illusion. Going through the process of experiencing a Christmas that felt strange for some unknown reason. Will we have Christmas in the same way or even having Christmas in the New World ? (itself!)

And also during this time, things of the outside world and outside reality are changing before they change. Right before something changes and leaves, it can manifest as a course of energy. "How can these things and ways of being continue to exist?" you may be wondering. Or perhaps you have simply just had enough of it all. Like moneychangers, it can create frustration and anger. And if you have come to the end, you really get your temperature rising! It is simply the last hurrah before the Vibrating higher always creates a very uncomfortable feeling when around. For the sensitives, being in this environment can literally make one sick. so that we will reach for higher ways of living and creating...we are basic part of our evolutionary process.

When We Get There..January 1

Now for the "good" stuff. And know again, that these dates are basic. We direction, and for some, their path is perfect in that they are setting up order for their own perfect experience and role. But generally speaking,

So what will happen after the transitioning has basically been completed begins. The party FINALLY begins!

We knew before we infused our energies into these particular forms what about. During the first phase we agreed to embody much pain, suffering and transmute it and also so that it would serve as a catalyst to awaken us to and that we wanted better. As is the purpose of all so called darkness, is so that we can define what we would prefer and then focus on becoming a New World, we create without this polarity. Being outside of the box, we need to be guided in this way.

So during the first phase, we shook things up, created ripples in the pond we could, moved all over the geographical map to balance the energies we dutifully served to fulfill our missions as lightworkers. In this first phase veil and in some confusion and darkness, but we were tough! And we loved

So now the first phase is over. And our New programming kicks in. The " thought we were, the "old" role we had, the "old" ways we processed and gone. We had to be what was here at the time. We had to be that version to shift what was. When we create, we always begin with where we are. A consciousness to expand, it must be in form. So it was a necessary part had!

And now .....we get to connect with our souls and embody in a much more are at soul levels. All the illusions will be swept away. The ascension process this as we literally find that we do not know who we are looking at in the who we really are very soon as we begin looking at the image of our soul

This New connection to ourselves at soul levels also involves our relationship the stars. These connections and identities will become very pronounced into the higher realms. Our star families have been watching and protecting as we are "ascending" them as well. We are now the forerunners (just recall of my new car!) for our star representations. We will be leading them as wisdom as well.

So we will be working as teams. Teaming with the non-physical beings ( as well as those humans who have crossed over and are assisting from the other with our soul partners here in the physical. We will be teaming up to create original blueprint for the planet Earth was for creating and experiencing, It was designed to be a playground and place for Source energy to exper

Our coding will now kick in as well. When we reach higher vibrations it a and we will soon be activated to begin our New roles. New conditions are serve to begin our New experiences that we had planned all along. We ha things to arrive specifically at this time when these New conditions were

With the advent of our arrival into the time and the energies for creating supported in all ways. We will be provided with all we need at our dispos accomplish and create.

Recently I was driving to California for the holidays. I usually put my ca When going up a hill, my old Ford Explorer would usually peter out in cru drive up hills with the input of my own foot. This last trip I was driving n off the cruise control while going up an incline, my car kicked into a new hill all by itself. I felt as if some unseen support was empowering me..lik support and incredible New strength arriving to get me precisely where I required on my part. It literally brought tears to my eyes as I was so sur

And this unseen and powerful support is what is beginning now and will c

But the exciting part is yet to come. Higher ways of living and creating w we are residing in a higher dimension. Manifesting in the palms of our ha from one place to another simply through thought and intent, moving thro other realities easily and rapidly, and on and on. This will most certainly Our time has come.

And on that note, those in the forefront will be residing in the higher dim come back to the stepping stone world for brief periods of time in order t find that it is difficult to reside in the lower vibrating realities for very l ascension process, we would experience periods where we would "check memory loss and space out. We were adjusting and moving from one dime

Now, we will experience this when we are visiting the lower vibrating rea We can't stay "down there" for very long. It is too taxing and heavy and

2006 will also be the year of the humanitarian. As so much will begin to world, there will be a considerable amount of humanitarian energy and a assist. Even as so much excitement is unfolding, the loss of the old will depression era nature. We will want to support and care for our human b ways. And as so many lightworkers are done with their own transitions ar ripe for the job. We will want many to arrive on the other side as we hav

I suppose this article could be quite lengthy, but for our purposes here, near horizon will be of a very different nature than what we have experie will begin unraveling quite rapidly now, as what has been created from fe and "in the box" reality must begin the process of undoing itself.

Lightworkers will be the human angels that serve to guide and light the way to the New World and higher ways of being and living. Some will reside in the trenches, and some will truly be in the trenches to guide and support and be, and most first wave will be in the highest realms of the other side, traveling to and fro from one reality to another, being while they may also serve as creators of a very higher vibrating so that they can arrive.

This year of 2006 will be quite an amazing one indeed with much to tell and share. And I look forward to continuing to share all the latest information with you through my website and books www.whatsuponplanetearth.com.
