Well guess what??

"Take 2"

I have a perpetual motion design that should work, I have approached the innovation center and Nottingham Trent technical university, I asked the top physicist and after 3 weeks with my idea. He replied "he is not sure if the design would be to tell would be to build a proto type".

The innovation center after 3 weeks replied early in the morning, when I basically said if you stopped a wheel on a bike, eventually the bike would stop. Using this principle with my invention to say it wouldn't work if you stopped it. Yet that is the idea it uses all the parts to be perpetual anyway. This as soon as I have resources we will do.

A basic guide of the design is that it can move water at high speeds along a pipe and produce electricity in the process from the energy produced.

My plan if it works and I can get it off the ground, is to re-irrigate a lot of dry sea water in land and using salt flats, to gradually. Put the salts which will gradually bring back rivers where we have destroyed them.

All of this though, we will see, as Babylon rules with an iron hand at present. A large enough collective of people, the same will happen as you are saying. They will vanish.
