Since in the English Bible we miss the word for unconditional love and the concept of having masculine and feminine..in fact most major religions..perhaps the world could have for unconditional love, within the English language and in all languages.

It would make far more sense in a lot of cases and help in recovering a lot of what we have seen whilst reading some of the world's religious texts, as intended.

So my suggestion is Uniolove..being that all love stems from one and that love is the only true path.

Also with two eggs as all spirituality is dual as left and right brain people have been for days..which at one point didn't so we are getting somewhere when people are brought together and bring both concepts as one...as in two egg's of a woman and the circle of life is most spirituality...

One being dogmatic and more religiously based..

The other being more based on freedom of the soul, yet both an equal and opposite other...
