Ok i have a question for you then?

If in my life i have had many prophocies fulfilled by me, how can they have happened before they occurred.

Is time only cylindrical, if we look at it that it has always been then present and future?

If infinity is in question, does time even exist or is it just a way to control time created and can change without us knowing as it would have always existed.

I do hear where you are coming from, in fact i had this same conversation with you.

Yet to look at time we must take ourselves out of only 4 dimensions and see it at a subatomic level doesn't need time.

Infinity can be looked at as a pool of cause and effect, if you chuck a pebble in it, it creates ripples.

Yet if chosen from the higher dimensions does the pool exist or is it only created when it happens, when you chuck in the pebble?

Else how could so many prophets see the future and be correct?

Unless something outside of time can change an event so we see it as something that has already happened.
