It is impossible, perhaps, to put into words or into print what a mystic so hard to believe it as it is to put it into words. But there is a certain inner Reality in a flash which illuminates the whole being with a great flood of an illusion unless the testimony were complete; for every mystic has had have had it to a greater degree than others. Jesus was the greatest of all, at least, after a period of illumination, His face was so bright that His followers. In moments of deepest realization the great mystics have sensed that Oneness and that all are some part of that Life. They have also seen Substance, a Substance, forever falling into everything; a Substance, indestructible and eternal. It has been so complete that they have been actually blinded by the light. There are several days after such an experience, the one having it could not see or had seen the Inner Light. Remember, all this takes place when in a perfect state and has nothing whatever to do with the psychic state. It is not an illusion during these periods that real revelation comes. Perhaps a good illustration would be a group of people in a room together, but unaware of each other's presence and their personal affairs. We will suppose the place to be dark and that some one takes a flash-light picture of the room and its occupants. Should this picture be shown to the room before it was taken, it might be hard for him to believe that all were actually in the room. This is, of course, a poor analogy, but it does illustrate. In flashes of illumination, the inspired have seen INTO THE VERY CENTER of things. They brought back with them a picture of what they have seen and felt. Again, it has been an illusion or simply a subjective hallucination, for each age has had its own and has produced the same results. ALL HAVE SEEN THE SAME THING. The truth is that and the evidence is certain.
