There are many scriptures out there. Bhagavad Gita, Quran, Bible, Torah makes one scripture to be "The true scripture"?

All scriptures were written by humans. All of them have errors. To believe no the other is just a matter of belief. The fact is all scriptures are written nothing to do with them.

It is about time to understand why the Western world became Christian a majority of the people of the world live on the east side of the hemisphere the main religion.

A look at history will inform us that different "councils" like the one in N "gospels" should be in the Bible and which shouldn't. There is no God here they know best: changing things for their own benefit.

To say that God is "jealous", that is ignorance if nothing else.

To give a human vice (jealousy) characteristic to God is an insult... and themselves theists...

God is a soul just like us. We are souls, but we believe that we are bodily human bodily characteristics.
