Within the book of Acts it has more than one author clearly...as half way instead of Simon (stone) peter, it says "whose surname was"...that is in name, not a surname...it was given as a stone of stumbling to all who follow (binding), and not the things of God..

There are quite a few slips in names changes also....so clearly someone the end points and facts that only Paul would have known and possibly T them things; who was one of Paul's accomplices...

As Paul mentioned in one of his letters, bring the other scrolls and so in the record of Acts, and any other documents he got his hands on.
