Since our spiritual books are mostly written by males and they see their down to this, that we use a male form for God when really to be an ultim both; God is both sexes in one being...

So do we dishonour God by making it actually smaller then it really is, b

If we run through some of the male aspects of our personality, we also s pertaining to God are also feminine in origin....

For instance unconditional love is given to most children by a mother, as one being....so this is like us and heaven where it is like a womb and un us....else like in quantum string theory, it suggests we wouldn't exist oth

For me seeing God, in my begin it was a reflection of many faces, yet that i perceived it to be that way....so if that was the case for me at that time, approached God would it be a female reflection I would have seen?

The ascended masters (elders) and angels are also both sexes in one be different lives, in each being to fully test...

So when every one of us can see our higher self (angel of our self) if we we made God both sexes in one being, as to truly allow all ways to reach

Reason for saying this, is I find it idolatry that instead of saying both th the male aspects of God are one, we separate it and so have many Pagan sacred feminine and many tyrannical religions having male dominated vie
