[Spirit is indestructible. When the physical body dies, the spirit continues in the Spirit World which interpenetrates ours, but which is in a different dimension. When living in the Spirit World we are the same individuals with the same personalities and characteristics. We change only by progression, or our own efforts.]

What would be the motive to do good on this plain - when eternity awaits?
principle?

If the spirit is strong - why does the body die?
Have you ever heard of the term 'his will was strong' and survived the ordeal?

And why would the spirit be born in a body if it does quite nicely without?

Awaiting your answers,
a brother.
