then the God who is answering to your deadly death driven thoughts is not understanding... When God wants vengeance, he does it himself, not through man.

God doesn't listen to anger, and if you wanted to show angels you exist, how do you show them in the process?

Also there was no wish for death, as God is the lord of the living. Just a world's people, that God is nature and so much more. Not some bloke floating in the whole universe and to realise that none of the world that we see as security. Also you are correct we do have power, yet God is the central processor, everything going to happen, it has to run through the processor.

There is no more or less important to God, there is those who show true faith and those who will fall at the 1st hurdle. The only way to open the locks is to be able to be at one with every lock and understand it. Not to be more than a man, as Christ put it, we can all do as he did and with enough faith, you can move mountains. Just remember before moving the mountain to check with God, and let him know you might crush your foot if you don't know what you are doing.
