Well it depends what you call God and what you call human struggle? Ari states that the meaning of life lies in equivalence of form with the Creator that encompasses every single aspect of reality on every level. Do not believe this is something that is unattainable. Not only is it attainable, but the belief that it is the purpose and the meaning of the life of every single individual. Now we understand why our desires keep growing: they are meant to become infinite desire can enjoy infinite pleasures, and only that which is equal can communicate with it on every level and receive from it in every aspect. The wisdom of Kabbalah teaches us about the meaning of being a Creator, and like that too, and also tells us how!
